Beschreibung

"My last stay in New Orleans for the realization of "world construction, variation: Empty vessel" at May gallery has left vivid memories of the sounds experienced in the city's different neighborhoods. The sounds heard – and partly captured and composed into the empty vessel – reflected the multifaceted societal and infrastructural conditions at the time of my visit. This new work revives these experiences by weaving the sonic impressions from one year ago into a multi-loudspeaker installation. The conditions of the city have changed, and details of the memories have blurred over time, but they still resonate, very gradually transforming and interchanging."
