Stilbeschreibung

Dudli (who is, for my money, the real star of this session) tends to provide the sort of drumming you'd expect on a free outing- some rhythmic pulse, but a lot of low rumbling pushing the soloist along as if on a tidal wave... Dudli forcing them to move further ahead..., plays as if he has five or six independent limbs. He keeps the beat with the cymbals, and while he is doing that, he is constantly playing, using his drums to make the ground shake under the soloist. Eric Sidel for Cadence, USA
